Schator Wilson of Texarkana Bowie county, spoke against the bill, declaring it is in effect an evasion of the constitution, being a mere subterfage. Said that it is against public beliey to pass this bill; that the time might come when unmires of railroad commission's jurisdiction.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Upon reconvening, the senate resumed consideration of the 115 mile lease bill. Hanger advocated the adoption of the majority report, insisting that the bill should be allowed to come before the senste and be subject to perfective and proper amendments.

Odell made an elaborate argument against the bill and favored the substitution of the the bill and favored the substitution of the minority report.

Davidson (De Witt) made a vigorous attack on the bill and said that the thirty mile bill was a bad precedent and that if the present bill should pass two years hence the legislature would be confronted with a proposition to increase the 115 miss.

Hanger moved to table the motion to substitute the adverse minority report; lost.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

When the house reconvened, Mr. Hestep resumed his argument against the Galveston grade-raising bill. He agreed with Mr. Seabury that this bill made an appropriation, but he entertained a grave doubt as to the power of the legislature to appropriate for such a purpose.

Mr. Moore championed the bill. He said it was not for the legislature to pass apon the constitutionality of acts; the courts were instituted for that purpose. Good lawyers on both sides held different views. Under these conditions Galveston should be given the beneaft of the doubt. The whom world had perintified its sympathy to be twelved by the pilgut of Galveston and had resided to her and, and now Texas, the mother of the stricken city, was in danger of being placed if the attride of turning a dust car to Galveston's cry for help.

Miscradule would be Texas' nostinon if she yielded to the arguments of those wow would lead her into this error. He custed the clause in the constitution which permits State aid in cases of public calantity. The request of Galveston was reasonable and Texas could yield without hurt to herself. He discussed exhaustively the business phase of the question, claiming that he rehabilitation of Galveston was reasonable and texas could yield without hurt to herself. He discussed exhaustively the business phase of the question claiming that he rehabilitation of Galveston was leading alphanded when he closed.

Mr. Greer followed, in opposition to the bill. He said Mr. Moore's people did not send him here to plead for Galveston, but the guard their interests and to unhold the constitution. The constitution said taxes should be equal and uniform all over the State, yet this bill provided that Galveston harbor would not be destroyed if it met the demands of commerce and the State's aid was not needed to save it.

The previous question was ordered after Mr. Greer closed, and the house refused to adopt the unfavorable minority report; 48 ayes, 53 noces.

The majority report was adopted AFTERNOON SESSION.

Fort Bend, Waller, Austin, Washington, Gelmes, Burleson, Brazos, Milam and Roberton countles for the purpose of protecting them from overflow in the Brazos river valley. This arkendment was merely read val was slatetracked to permit the friends of the bill to perfect it.

Mr. Noisn offered an amendment making a specific appropriation for two years of the State taxes to the city of Jaiveston and providing that succeeding legislatures for fifteen years shall make similar constitutions.

for affect years shall make similar constitues.

Mr. Hendricks offered a substitute striking out the fifteen year feature and leaving an appropriation for two years only. The house refused to table this amendment, 45 ayes, 60 noes, and it was substituted for the Nolan amendment.

Mr. Shaw argued against the amendment as substituted, declaring that it would prevent the floating of the bonds.

He was applauded heartily as he pleaded elequently for Galveston.

Mr. Henderson (Lamar) replied to him.

Mr. Moursund made an carnest plea for Galveston. The amendment as substituted was adepted—60 ayes, 43 noes.

Adjourned—nutil 6:30 o'clock temorrow morning.

(In the house routine of yesterday an error appears in the report of an amendment effered by Mr. Poole to the morphine and cocaine bill. It was stated that one half a grain of cocaine could be sold without prescription. The amendment provided that one-fourth grain of morphine and one half grain of opium could be sold without prescription. Cocaine can not be purchased in any quantity without a prescription under the bill.)
